

A control can only catch what it can see.

Most controls sit downstream of the device, so the traffic that never takes a sanctioned path stays invisible to them. That traffic is shadow AI. Where a control sits decides what it can catch.

Sit at the device, before egress, on every path, and there is no blind spot to inherit. The model proposes. Verillian decides.